Life Quotes

"It is not 'progressive' to try to resolve problems by eliminating a human life."

— Pope Francis, Evangelii Gaudium: The Joy of the Gospel

Embracing Our Dying

A Project of the California Catholic Conference

END OF LIFE DECISIONS:

A Pastoral Guide

Richard Benson, C.M., Ph.D., S.T.D.

St. John's Seminary, Camarillo, CA

THE THEOLOGICAL VISION OF LIFE AND DEATH

"The Catholic health care ministry faces the reality of death with the confidence of faith. In the face of death for many, a time when hope seems lost – the church witnesses to her belief that God has created each person for eternal life...

The truth that life is a precious gift from God has profound implications for the question of stewardship over human life. We are not the owners of our lives and, hence, do not have absolute power over life.

"While life is to be regarded as God's gift, it also is true that death is unavoidable. We must be able therefore, without in any way hastening the hour of death, to accept it with full consciousness of our responsibility and with full dignity. Death indeed puts an end to this earthly life but in doing so it opens the way to undying life."

NO MORAL OBLIGATION TO USE EXTRAORDINARY MEANS

"In our day it is very important at the moment of death to safeguard the dignity of the person and the Christian meaning of life, in the face of a technological approach to death that can easily be abused. We speak of a 'right to die' not as a right of persons to inflict death on themselves at will by their own or another's hand, but rather as a right to die peacefully and in a manner worthy of a human being and a Christian...When death is imminent and cannot be prevented by the remedies used, it is licit in conscience to decide to renounce treatments that can only yield a precarious and painful prolongation of life, and which result in a heavy burden on the family or the community.

WHO MAKES THE DECISION?

"In the last analysis, the decision rests with the conscience of the sick person or those who have a right to act in the sick person's name or of the doctors, who must bear in mind the principles of morality and the several aspects of the case. The purpose of medicine is to care for life, even when a condition cannot be cured.

ARTIFICIAL NUTRITION AND HYDRATION

"In principle, there is an obligation to provide patients with food and water, including medically assisted nutrition and hydration for those who cannot take food orally.

For the dying patient Medically assisted nutrition and hydration become morally optional when they cannot reasonably be expected to prolong life or when they would be "excessively burdensome for the patient or [would] cause significant physical discomfort, for example resulting from complications in the use of the means employed. For instance, as a patient draws close to inevitable death from an underlying progressive and fatal condition, certain measures to provide nutrient and hydration may become excessively burdensome and therefore not obligatory in light of their very limited ability to prolong life or provide comfort. ERD, 58, p 31

"... [W]e should not assume that all or most decisions to withhold or withdraw medically assisted nutrition and hydration are attempts to cause death. To be sure, any patient will die if all nutrition and hydration are withheld. But sometimes other causes are at work —the patient may be imminently dying...from an already existing terminal condition."

This obligation [to provide food and water] extends to patients in chronic and presumably irreversible conditions (e.g., the "persistent vegetative state") who can reasonably be expected to live indefinitely if given such care.

May Christ's Spirit guide you in these critical decisions. God wills that we be conceived in love, live in love, and die in love. The Church's teachings stem from this belief.
